Presentations:

Mapping Your Family History This class will give ideas on different ways to use maps to solve problems and tell your family history stories.

What a Disaster! Has one of your ancestors been involved in a weather-related disaster? This class will give you some ideas on writing about and researching weather events and where to find imagery that will help you enhance and embellish your stories.

Family History and Military Service This class will give you some ideas on writing and researching your ancestors or relatives who have served in the military, including medals, job descriptions, uniforms, weaponry, and equipment, regardless of the branch of the military or the country they served.

A Soldier's Journey Follow one soldier's path through history to discover how military records, photos, and historical context can bring service stories to life. Using her father's journey as an example, genealogist Susie Wickman shows how to uncover and tell the personal story behind the uniform.

What the Immigrants Saw: A Visual Journey to America Step into the shoes of your immigrant ancestors. Through historical images and maps, experience what they might have seen as they left home, crossed the ocean, and arrived in a new land.

AI and Family History (In development for 2026)

Ships From immigrant crossings to wartime service, ships hold remarkable clues to our family stories. Explore how to research the vessels that shaped your ancestors' journeys, civilian and military alike.

Writing Your Family History – Quickly Want to write your family history but don't know where to start? This class will introduce fast, manageable ways to turn your research into readable stories—without getting overwhelmed.

Strange tale of Gottlieb Saylor German-Russian immigrant. US Pioneer. Deaf-mute since childhood. Homesteader, sued by the US Government for failing to make his claim. He's a puzzle. Can you help me solve it?

Veterans Write Encouraging Veterans to write their stories. Some ideas to get organized and get started. (I've done this as a one hour presentation or an 8-class series)

Writing Your Story Tips to get you started writing your own story. Who else will write it? (In development for 2026)
